

Observations:

- Playtester1:
 - The tester did not read the how to play instructions.
 - Tester didn't know that he could dash at the first few waves.
 - The dashing feature doesn't seem to be very useful in the early game.
 - The spinning cleaver in the second level doesn't seem to reach the bottom of the map. Players can hide there without taking damage.
- Playtester 2(TA):
 - TA doesn't use dashing during the game.
 - The player was pushed out of the limited area, making it impossible to continue the game.
 - The upgrade options are not clearly defined, making it difficult for players to accurately select the upgrade features they need.
- Playtester 3:
 - Tester is trying to get off the cutting board
 - The second map brought a new experience to the player. He clearly knew he needed to dodge fireballs and spinning cleavers.
 - When the player arrived at the third map, he did not notice that there was a boss above him.
 - The boss's health was too low, so it was instantly killed by the player.
 - Level 2 and Level 3 maps' boundaries were not functioning, causing players to be pushed out of their proper areas and making it impossible to continue the game.
- Playtester 4:
 - Tester was confused about the upgrade menu; they were unsure how to select the options.
 - Tester was puzzled by the Dashing enemies, as he had initially thought they were impossible to eliminate.
 - The fifth wave(level 3 map) of enemies appeared too frequently, causing the player to be surrounded.
- Playtester 5:
 - The tester was soon able to understand how the game worked.
 - The tester was able to pass the first round of the battle very easily.
 - When equipped with sufficient levels, the tester can easily defeat the boss.
- Playtester 6:
 - Tester initially overlooked the language translation button.
 - The language translation is not yet complete, leaving Tester unsure of what upgrade options they need.

- Teste was confused about the damage from the cleaver. They thought the cleaver only damaged players, but they later discovered that it could damage both players and enemies.
- The music seems too high for the players; even the setting page shows very low volume.

Feedbacks:

- Playtester 1:
 - The game is currently too easy, and players are unlikely to die. Perhaps the upgrade parameters need some adjustment.
 - There are remnants of the player's entrance animation. He can see some residual pixels floating above the player.
- Playtester 2(TA):
 - The current icon styles are inconsistent. Some are very simple yet very clear. Others are more detailed but blurrier.
 - The upgrade system is inadequate and incomplete. For example, the option descriptions need more information.
 - The first two waves are too easy, so players don't need to do much. The difficulty should be adjusted appropriately. However, the third wave is too difficult because enemies appear too frequently, and the area for movement is too small.
- Playtester 3:
 - The translation button on the main menu needs to change its color because the current button is too transparent, making it difficult to notice that there is a button at first glance.
- Playtester 4:
 - Player hit feedback needs to be improved; currently, the Health bar alone is not enough to provide players with sufficient feedback.
 - Screen shaking can be used to enhance the player's hit feedback.
- Playtester 5:
 - The operation is simple and clear. There are many skill combinations and they are very interesting. It feels great to play and the design of dodging is very good.
 - The battle pace is fast. The difficulty of the second round of combat has increased too much, and the boss's health is too low.
- Playtester 6:
 - The limited area can be appropriately increased.
 - Enemy spawn density can be appropriately reduced.
